President’s Report
Michael Fiorentino, Jr.

Dr. Fiorentino stated that he has been involved in the continued promotion of the University through enrollment management activities with he and the senior administrative team meeting with prospective students during open house and individual day visits through the admissions office.
The renovation of Price Auditorium will be the next major project under the long-range facilities plan and will serve as an investment of the University’s future to provide better facilities for our students and a better first impression for the many visitors for which Price is a stop on their tour of the University.

President Fiorentino encouraged the Trustees to attend the Dosey Arts Recital on March 22 in the Durrwachter Alumni Conference Center at 7:00 pm. A variety of our students will be performing dance and musical selections, and our visual arts students will have their works on display.

The University will be conducting a campus climate assessment survey to be completed by faculty, staff, and students to determine where improvements can be made to assure that our campus is inclusive.

The development of the new strategic plan is underway, utilizing representation from the campus constituents to help develop the next steps of the University. It is expected that the final draft will be presented to the Trustees for approval at the May 2017 meeting.

President Fiorentino has been meeting with students and he acknowledged his appreciation of their professionalism and ability to research a topic and bring forth suggestions. In addition to meeting with two athletic teams and the Student Athlete Advisory Committee (twice), he has also met with the student government officers to gain their perspectives on campus happenings.

Academic Affairs
Donna Wilson, Provost

Dr. Wilson noted academic year 2020/2021 will be a busy one as we will be celebrating the 150th anniversary of LHU, welcoming the Middle States self-study site visit team, and 2020 is the target year for a program array and student experience that will keep LHU excellent and fiscally sound. The new self-study process is anchored in the University’s strategic plan focusing on academic excellence, financial sustainability, responsibility, and partnerships.

Academic Affairs divisions will be preparing for the changing higher education market by investing in inclusive excellence through the campus climate survey to assure that we are prepared for additional underrepresented groups. High-impact learning experiences will continue to be integrated in all disciplines. The academic program array will be anchored in our mission and the marketing to meet workforce needs for the Commonwealth.
Finance and Administration Report
William Hanelly, Vice President

Mr. Hanelly reviewed data outlining an independent assessment on how we spend facilities dollars in comparison with the condition of our buildings. Currently Lock Haven University has a higher percentage of buildings over 50 years of age. As renovations are completed, building age concerns are mitigated. Special attention has been given to energy efficiencies and LHU continues to be the third most energy efficient university in PASSHE and are now spending below the average for utilities.

University Relations
Rodney Jenkins, Vice President

Mr. Jenkins stated the plans for the 2nd Annual Arts Festival are underway and Lock Haven University, in conjunction with the Clinton County Arts Council, will play an important role in the weekend’s events. Plans include an arts/music camp to bring high school students to campus, hosting the Jazz Concert reception on Friday, and providing performances for Saturday’s downtown events.

The Martin Luther King Jr. celebration brought in Key Arts Productions once again from Philadelphia to provide a presentation on the young leaders of the civil rights movement. Our students also participated in the performances.

The new website is due to be launched mid-March and is currently being reviewed for content. This new website will introduce the new domain name change from “lhup” to “lockhaven” for website and email addresses. The new website will also promote new branding efforts.

Mr. Jenkins was excited for an opportunity for our students to receive real industry experiences in working with WBRE/WYOU to produce a one-hour long black history segment which will air this Sunday at 11:00 am.

The Durrwachter Alumni Conference Center will host the next Economic Partnership “Time Out” to promote the use of the Center for conferences and events in the tri-county area.

Enrollment Management and Student Affairs
Tyana Lange, Vice President

Dr. Lange noted two Open Houses are scheduled for March 4 and April 8. The campus will welcome more than 350 new students at the April 22nd Accepted Student Day events.
More than 100 clubs and organizations participated at the Fair at the Student Recreation Center and reported this activity reached lots of new recruits. The Global MountainServe Office moved to the PUB to allow better access to student groups for their various activities. The Alternative Spring Break opportunity this year will be to Roanoke, Virginia, to support homeless facilities.

APSCUF President Report
Stan Berard

Dr. Berard addressed what he felt were misconceptions regarding the process through Meet and Discuss to review a proposed realignment of athletic programming, noting the process does not have to be done within 30 days pursuant to the CBA and that the process does not preclude deliberation with other constituencies. Dr. Berard noted that student athletes have been successful students and asked that the administration consider other options before cuts to athletic programs.

Special Report
Center for Career and Professional Development
Ms. MaryJo Campana

Provost Wilson introduced Ms. MaryJo Campana, who as the new Director for the Center for Career and Professional Development, has been strategically helping students and recent alums prepare for the future. Ms. Campana reviewed the general philosophy that students need to begin preparing for their first job interview when they arrive as freshman so that they can master the eight key skills: teamwork/collaboration, professionalism/work ethic, oral/written communications, leadership, information technology application, critical thinking/problem solving, career management, and global/intercultural fluency. The Center offers programs to help students identify these skills, including a digital e-portfolio which can be shared with prospective employers to demonstrate the high impact learning experiences and key skills developed while at Lock Haven University.
